DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claims 6-10 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

Claim 6 and all claims dependent therefrom recite limitations comprising only logic. Since "logic" does not comprise any physical element, the use of the terminology, "A system" appears to be misdescriptive.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC §101

35 U.S.C. 101 reads as follows:

Whoever invents or discovers any new and useful process, machine, manufacture, or composition of matter, or any new and useful improvement thereof, may obtain a patent therefor, subject to the conditions and requirements of this title.

Claims 1-4 and 6-9, as best understood, are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 101 because the claimed invention is directed to non-statutory subject matter.

The basis of this rejection is set forth in a two-prong test of:

- (1) whether the invention is within the technological arts; and
- (2) whether the invention produces a useful, concrete, and tangible result.

For a claimed invention to be statutory, the claimed invention must be within the technological arts. Mere ideas in the abstract (i.e., abstract idea, law of nature, natural phenomena) that do not apply, involve, use, or advance the technological arts fail to promote the "progress of science and the useful arts" (i.e., the physical sciences as opposed to social sciences, for example) and therefore are found to be non-statutory subject matter. For a process claim, the recited process must somehow apply, involve, use, or advance the technological arts.

In the present case, claims 1-10 only recite an abstract idea. The recited steps/logic of merely selecting analyses, locating results, comparing results, and generating a report do not necessarily apply, involve, use, or advance the technological arts since all of the recited steps/logic can be performed in the mind of the user or by use of a pencil and paper. These steps only constitute an idea of how to create a report for comparisons.

Additionally, for a claimed invention to be statutory, the claimed invention must produce a useful, concrete, and tangible result. In the present case, claims 1-10 do generate a report which is a useful, concrete, and tangible result.

Because the recited process/system of claims 1-10 is not within the technological arts as explained above, claims 1-10 are deemed to be directed to non-statutory subject matter.

Further, claims 11-15 are non-statutory because they recite computer code not necessarily embodied on a computer readable medium.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-15 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Salvo et al. '271.

Salvo et al. disclose all of the limitations of the claims including: providing a plurality of separate supply chain analyses (See for example, Col. 7, lines 22-27) part of a single supply chain cost analysis, providing results of the supply chain analyses to management (See for example, Col. 7, lines 27-31), comparing the results (See for example, Col. 7, lines 33-35), generating a report (See for example, Col. 7, lines 31-32); except the specific teaching of actually "selecting" a plurality of supply chain analyses and actually "locating" the results.

It would have been an obvious design choice to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to provide the capability of actually "selecting" analyses and actually "locating" results in order to be able to isolate specific pieces of information for review by management, as is well known in business.

Relevant Prior Art

The assignee, Restaurant Services Inc. (RSI), launched a product (RSI/Link) "to collect sales, shipment, pricing, and inventory information from Burger King's 350 suppliers and distributors" (See "A Whopping Inventory Task") in 1994.

The article "Burger King Orders AT&T Mail Service" discusses how "the E-mail network will replace a manual, paper-based tracking and ordering system."

The Examiner requests that the applicant provide the Office with any known information relevant to the above mentioned product launch.

The other prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.
